IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR

Dear Parents, Alumni, Faculty, Staff, and Friends,

What a terrific year 2010-2011 was for our Rowland Hall community. First of all, our students' achievements were outstanding! Sweeping the chess championships in all divisions and having our jazz bands win state honors at both the middle and upper school levels were very impressive accomplishments. We won four state athletic championships (the most of any school in 2A and tied with only two other schools for most in the state) and, in spite of the horrific car accident from which all are now recovering, remarkably our Rowmark team had its best year ever. No surprise, then, that Todd Brickson was named Intermountain Ski Coach of the year!

Watching and enjoying the thrill of children learning is fun and instructive for me and there are always outstanding examples each year. Two stand out from the past school year. Several Upper School students started The Make Club (whose purpose is scientific exploration) and its members subsequently launched a space balloon that traveled to 100,000 feet, with GPS and other technological features feeding data back to earth in real time. Equally impressive was a project inaugurated by our senior class – the all-school Carnival was wildly successful for each participant and also served as a fantastic way to unite the entire school at the end of the year. The Carnival is the Class of 2011's class gift to the school, and next year's senior class is committed to continuing what will, I'm sure, prove to be a wonderful new school tradition. We appreciate all the effort and thought that went into the planning and execution of this fun family event.

Speaking of hard work, it was truly because of the efforts put in by many committed individuals that Rowland Hall has finally, officially acquired the Steiner Campus property. We have a clear vision of a new home for middle and upper school students – one that will truly be designed for the kind of learning our students will need to be successful in the future. Depending on how fund raising progresses during the early quiet phase of the capital campaign, the new campus will be built in whole or in phases. You will hear much more about this in the near future, but clearly we can celebrate having hurdled some big obstacles thus far.

Also on the financial and fundraising fronts, our Annual Fund is strong and, because of each and every gift and donor, it continues to provide critical support for school operations. In addition Rowland Hall was honored this year to receive a $2 million award from the prestigious, national Malone Family Foundation. This gift to our endowment will provide scholarship funding for academically talented future students. And, we have no debt. The school is in excellent financial shape.

I love to receive emails and notes from students, parents, grandparents, and alumni. So in closing, I'd like to share the words of a parent whose children were new to the school last year: "As the school year comes to an end, I have been looking back at our first year at Rowland Hall with absolute amazement and admiration. Our expectations were high. Both my wife and I graduated from highly regarded east coast prep schools. In Los Angeles, we placed our boys in an independent school with an excellent reputation. Yet, the experience our children have had over the last nine months at Rowland Hall absolutely blew those other institutions out of the water."

Thank you for allowing me to be a part of this supportive community of learners.

Sincerely,

Alan Sparrow, Head of School

REPORTS

From the Chair of the Board of Trustees: ARE WE THE KIND OF SCHOOL WE WANT TO BE?

“Okay, fifth graders! Take six giant steps back, all the way into Middle School!” said Deborah Mohrman at the June 8 Stepping Back Ceremony. This was the last Stepping Back I am likely to see, as our youngest child moves on to sixth grade. I will miss witnessing the thrill of the children at the beginning of summer, their sense of accomplishment for having contributed to the life of their class, their realization that they have grown, and most of all their happiness abounding. I felt the happiness of our students on that day, and then again at three subsequent commencement exercises for our seniors, eighth graders, and fifth graders. It is a continuous impression, that our Rowland Hall children experience joy in their journey, and this should give us great satisfaction.

This year I first heard the expression, “Tiger Mom.” During the graduation week, I read in the New York Times that some east coast parents are paying close to six figures a year for their children’s tutors, to gain a leg up applying to an Ivy League college. In a spring meeting at Rowland Hall, the admissions director of a prestigious western college told senior parents that over 25 percent of her freshman class were taking prescription medications to assist with emotional instability. Am I alone in thinking that vanity, and misplaced values, are putting too much pressure on children? We can offer an outstanding educational experience without that kind of unhealthy pressure.

At a Board of Trustees’ retreat in early November, we are planning to reflect again upon what kind of a school we want Rowland Hall to be. I will be there to say that our children are happy in their school life. I will say this is good in itself, a treasure. It is also true that years from now our children will still know what it feels like to be happy, and if they run into some rough stretches then they might remember what is healthy and good for them. I want this most of all for my children.

To support our children’s educational passage from toddler years through high school graduation, Rowland Hall has entered the quiet phase of a capital campaign for new middle and upper school facilities on the Steiner Campus. We are assembling pledges and early gifts. We are gauging how far we can go in the next few years toward our long-term goal of building the most effective facility in this country for learning. We do not know all the answers yet.

Please be thinking and sharing with us about how you can help. I think Rowland Hall serves our children very well, but I think we can be even better for them.

Sincerely,
Bob Steiner

Board Chair

2010 - 2011 FINANCE REPORT

It is with pleasure that the Finance Committee of the Board of Trustees reports another successful year for our school. Rowland Hall enters the 2011-2012 year debt-free and with a funded contingency account to cushion us in the event of unanticipated financial problems.

Guided by the full Board of Trustees and the school's administrators, our committee has focused funding on critical mission-based areas of the budget. However, as tuition-paying parents we also understand that enrolling our children at the school is a financial commitment not taken lightly. Hence we have worked with the administration to identify operations at the school where, with creative adjustments, we can be more cost effective.

Tuition is our largest source of revenue and total tuition dollars is the product of tuition rate and total enrollment. While enrollment remains strong we cannot take this for granted, particularly in our current economic environment. When you refer your friends, neighbors, relatives, and colleagues to Rowland Hall you are serving a vital component of our financial stability.

The Annual Fund is the second largest funding source for the school; it provides approximately $800 per student to make ends meet over and above tuition revenue. Your generosity to the Annual Fund keeps tuition from rising at higher percentages. Thank you to all who contribute to the Annual Fund. Many foundations, when considering making a grant to Rowland Hall, look closely at the percentage of parents participating in the Annual Fund. In addition, 100% of our faculty and staff give to the Annual Fund each year. To those of you who have yet to contribute, please consider the need and give a gift this year.

The coming year will provide challenges and opportunities for our school. The administration, Board of Trustees, and the Finance Committee won't lose sight of the importance of providing an excellent education today while maintaining the stability of the school in the years to come.

CLASS OF 2011

GRADUATES OF THE CLASS OF 2011

The 63 members of the Class of 2011 clearly understood the college counseling office's philosophy that college choice is first and foremost about the fit between institution and student. We congratulate them as they successfully completed the college admission process and will matriculate this fall into 42 institutions around the country as well as several international schools. This class has the highest percentage of Rowmark Ski Academy graduates of any class in Rowland Hall history and many of these elite athletes have chosen to pursue further ski training as Rowmark post-graduates in preparation for Division 1 college programs or the U.S. Ski Team. This year, as in previous years, more than half of our senior class received offers of merit scholarships to colleges. All our seniors made choices based on their interests and will end up at schools such as Stanford, the University of Utah, Cornell, Scripps, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Colorado College of Mines, Georgetown, Westminster, Bates – just to name a few.

What follows is a list of the colleges and universities to which our graduates will matriculate, then a list of the schools to which our graduates were admitted.

END OF YEAR FACULTY AWARDS

Congratulations to the following teachers who have received awards this spring for outstanding service to their profession and to the school.

It is an award given by a family who has shown an unparalleled commitment to the school for three generations. The award symbolizes the Sumner family's high regard for the faculty. Congratulations to the 2010-2011 recipients of the Sumner Family Faculty Awards:

Beginning School: Lisa Williams, 4PreK Assistant Teacher
Lower School: Sarah Button, 5th Grade Teacher
Middle School: Sofia Gorder, Dance Teacher
Upper School: Ben Smith, Upper School Technology,
Graphic Design and Photography Teacher

Dr. Carolyn Hickman

The Cary Jones Faculty Mentor Award was established through an anonymous gift to the school in honor of Mr. Jones' dedication to the faculty when he was a trustee and chair of the Board. This year Rowland Hall proudly honors Dr. Carolyn Hickman for demonstrating excellence in the classroom and service to the entire Rowland Hall community with the Cary Jones Faculty Mentor Award.

The Marquardt Award was established this year through a generous gift from Bob Marquardt, father of three boys who attended Rowland Hall and a long-time trustee and Board chair. This gift to our endowment will annually fund an extraordinary professional development opportunity to benefit the school as a whole, proposed by a faculty member.

The Marquardt Award for the 2010-2011 school year was awarded to Upper School Physics teacher Robin Hori who proposed, and will receive funding from the Marquardt Award for an innovative project that will introduce Upper School students to the field of robotics. In his proposal he wrote, "Initially, robotics would start off as an after school activity and develop into a trimester course and, possibly, into a year-long, advanced science elective. The curriculum will be from the Robotics Academy developed by Carnegie Mellon University and students will develop a basic understanding of robotics hardware and software through experimentation. They would then build a robot and write a program for the robot to complete a specific task. As the students develop a deeper understanding of robotics and programming, robot design and programming will become more complex." Congratulations and thank you to Robin.

According to Head of School Alan Sparrow, "In its inaugural year, we received five excellent proposals from faculty – all very different, yet valuable – and each worthy of funding. We thank Bob Marquardt for this creative and generous gift to the school that will give back so much to our students."

Robin Hori

ANNUAL FUND SURPASSES GOAL

The Annual Fund closed out the year with a strong finish, successfully raising $858,010.00.

This total rose above and beyond the 2010-2011 goal by over $130,000. The money raised this year went to support a number of essential programs such as continuing education opportunities for faculty, technology upgrades, financial aid, and facility improvements including a much needed overhaul of the Lincoln Street band room to be completed by the end of summer 2011. All of this was made possible by contributions from you – the entire Rowland Hall community of parents, grandparents, faculty, staff, alumni, and friends of the school. Thank you.

Special thanks go to chairs of the 2010-2011 Annual Fund, Ira Rubinfeld and Willamarie Huelskamp.

Their tireless dedication and passion for educating everyone about the importance of participation in the Annual Fund were an invaluable part of this year's achievement. Another big thank you goes to the Annual Fund class liaisons who helped raise our parent participation to 75 percent.

THANK YOU

To our amazingly generous faculty and staff who, for seven years, have participated in the Annual Fund at 100%!

TAKING ON THE ANNUAL FUND, AGAIN!

We are excited to announce that Ira Rubinfeld and Willamarie Huelskamp have agreed to chair the Annual Fund for the 2011-2012 school year. Under their leadership, the 2010-2011 Annual Fund experienced great success, and we are fortunate to have their experience, insight, and dedication for the second year in a row.

This year marks Ira's fifth year of service on the Board of Trustees and during his tenure he has served on the diversity committee, the education committee, the legal committee, and he will continue to serve on the campaign steering committee this coming year. Ira and Willamarie's daughter, Sonia, will be a sophomore this fall.

With one campaign under their belts, Ira and Willamarie were asked to share what they will focus on in the coming year:

Participation – *It's About Showing Support for Something You Care About

We both strongly believe in the importance of participating in the Annual Fund at the ability and comfort level of the individual or family. It isn't just about what you give, it's that you give. Rowland Hall is a unique and special community that supports families in many ways. By participating in the Annual Fund, families show their support for Rowland Hall and all it has to offer.

The Bottom Line – *It's Not Just About the Bottom Line

Some people may not give because they think their contribution, however small, won't mean anything, and that is simply not true. Of course, the Annual Fund is crucial for the school to provide funds for the things that tuition alone doesn't cover, and meeting our fiscal year goal is important. However, any gift – large or small – does more than add to the total dollars raised. The percentage of families who participate at any level shows how much we value Rowland Hall and that we want to help keep it one of the premier independent schools in the country. Outside entities often look to the participation level of the current parent body as a way to determine whether or not to give grants to an institution. It speaks volumes about the culture and nature of a community when a high percentage of members contribute.

Ira Rubinfeld and Willamarie Huelskamp, Chairs, 2011 - 2012 Annual Fund

Go Green, Give Early

A great deal of time and effort by so many could be saved if as many people as possible made their contributions early in the year. Paper, printing, postage – all of these materials are used for fundraising in conjunction with volunteer time. Giving to the Annual Fund early in the year supports the fundraising effort as well as saving the time of individuals and the use of resources. It also means you won't be contacted about the Annual Fund for the rest of the year, and you can cross something off your never ending "to do" list.

So give to the Annual Fund. Give early if you can. Show your support of the school we all believe in and help make the 2011-2012 Annual Fund successful.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR ROWLAND HALL : BUILDING THE FUTURE

Campaign progress – What a difference seven months makes! From land acquisition to drafting campus plans, from orchestrating a campaign steering committee to initial fundraising – the board is well on its way to determining the scope and timing of a capital campaign to build a new middle and upper school campus.

The new campus will include a regulation-sized soccer field and practice field, two new gymnasiums – one for the Middle School and one for the Upper School, an arts center with space for music, dance, fine arts, theater and studio, a sunlight-filled dining hall, and technologically upgraded classrooms and labs for our students.

Timing and phasing for this effort is now being determined. Our architects, EHDD of San Francisco, have drafted a program outlining exact details for every space of this new campus and our project manager, Ken Ament of Salt Lake's Cost Control Corporation, has verified that the new campus will cost $66 million.

Additionally, and critical to this effort, is the need to raise $9 million in endowment dollars to ensure the long-term financial stability of the school. Four percent of income from the Endowment Fund supplements the portion of the operating budget that is not funded via tuition, along with proceeds from the Annual Fund.

The grand total for the entire effort of land, building, and endowment is $75 million. That's a big number. We've heard this number feels insurmountable, hard to "get your arms around," and outright too much, particularly at a time when the economic picture is unsure. Yes, $75 million is a big number. But consider the following:

The need is real – we must build a new campus to offer our students a 21st century education. We cannot upgrade our existing facilities any further – the cost would be far greater. Plus, we physically do not have the space on Lincoln Street to offer needed facilities such as gyms and fields. We need a new campus.

We're off to a running start. Impressively, trustees have already raised and personally committed $14.1 million to the effort. This number includes the recent $2 million Malone Family Foundation Scholarship Endowment grant as well as $794k from the sale of a building Rowland Hall owned in Salt Lake's 9th and 9th area.

This school year, we will begin to reach out to friends and families to gain a clearer picture of our fundraising capacity. Parents, grandparents, alumni and friends can expect to hear more detail about the campaign scope and timing soon.

We can phase the project if need be. We can break the project into several phases based upon which aspect of the project is of the highest priority for our students and what is cost effective from a construction viewpoint. The Board anticipates making this decision in the coming school year once they have a clearer sense of how much money we can raise this school year.

THE MALONE FAMILY FOUNDATION
GRANTS RH $2 MILLION FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

This May Rowland Hall received a prestigious and extraordinarily generous grant to its Endowment Fund – $2 million – from The Malone Family Foundation. This endowment grant will annually fund financial aid needs for new students in grades seven through 12. The Malone Foundation is a national foundation whose mission it is “to promote positive changes in the lives of people, who in turn can build and enhance the communities in which they live.” Rowland Hall is the only school in Utah and one of only seven schools in the U.S. to receive this grant this year.

Schools do not apply for this grant, but are chosen for eligibility from “a very select” handful of independent schools to receive a Request for Proposal from The Malone Family Foundation. According to the foundation’s Executive Director Cathie Wlaschin, “Rowland Hall was initially chosen as an applicant because of its scholastic record, its college acceptance history, and its accommodations for the gifted and talented, as well as its geographic location in an area not already served by the foundation’s endowments.”

The Malone Family Foundation’s primary goal each year is to provide scholarship funding at a secondary school level for U.S. students who are in the top five percent of their national class and have the desire and drive to educate themselves to the very best of their ability but lack the financial resources to attend excellent independent schools.

We look forward to supporting merit/need-based students as we launch the Malone Scholars program this 2011-2012 school year. If you know of students/families who may fit the criteria for this scholarship, please contact Karen Hyde, Director of Admission at 801-924-5940.

Welcome Mary Anne Wetzel '01 to New Role as Director of the Annual Fund

With the bittersweet departure of Adria Swindle, we welcome Mary Anne Wetzel as the new director of the Annual Fund. Mary Anne most recently has been working in the Development Department as the development associate –serving the board, acting as the campaign assistant, orchestrating grandparent days, serving as the data manager, and holding all moving parts together. Mary Anne graduated from Rowland Hall as a Cumming Scholar (merit scholarship) and earned her bachelor degree in psychology from the University of Utah. She has worked in the Middle School and admission office as well. Mary Anne brings expertise, dedication, enthusiasm, humor, and great energy to the school and we are thrilled she's stepped into this role.

Welcome Coral Azarian as the Development Associate

With Mary Anne's promotion, we were fortunate to quickly fill her role with a new and talented young woman, Coral Azarian. Coral is a recent transplant from Easton, Massachusetts, where she attended Stonehill College, earning a BA in American history. Coral has worked in private colleges as an admission counselor and intern. She's a digital native and is eager to explore the "West." Please welcome Coral to the community.

ENTREPRENEURS CIRCLE UPDATE

Many individuals within the Rowland Hall community, whether they are associated with the school as alumni, current parents, grandparents, or friends, have made their mark in the business world as successful entrepreneurs. To celebrate and share in these individual's knowledge and accomplishments, Rowland Hall has created a new organization of business individuals and companies, the Rowland Hall Entrepreneur's Circle.

The idea was shared with us by one of our parents, Mike Levinthal, who, in volunteer work for Stanford University, participated in a similar effort. The threefold essence of the Entrepreneur's Circle:

Networking: The Entrepreneur's Circle provides an avenue for entrepreneurial-minded people to connect with each other to discuss business ventures, brainstorm ideas, and deepen their ties within the entrepreneurial business community.

Opportunities: Circle members are committed to providing current students and alumni, as appropriate, opportunities for professional development, internships, idea sharing, and jobs. Lee Thomsen, Upper School principal, will be working with numerous Circle members as the school launches a new program called "Beyond the Classroom," focused on expanding students' understanding of professional job opportunities.

Giving Back: Entrepreneurs typically recognize that along the path of their success, a plethora of people played a role and offered help. Circle members believe in giving back to Rowland Hall

– the school and community that offered them so much. In order to join the Circle, individuals/families must pledge a future gift to the school of a minimum of $50,000. All gifts will support the school's endowment. Their gift is dependent upon the success of their entrepreneurial venture. Thank you to the following individuals and families who have committed to the Entrepreneur's Circle:

COMMUNITY

"I see Rowland Hall as a place where both the mind and heart are valued; a place where students are given the opportunity to grow, make connections, try new things, make mistakes, and excel in a variety of areas. Rowland Hall is a place where students, faculty, parents, and administrators work together with the goal of educating young people."

GRANDPARENTS

Over a period of 25 years, we have experienced education at Rowland Hall through the lives of 10 of our grandchildren. We go back to the good-old First Avenue days. The superior education our grandchildren received at Rowland Hall enabled one to become a pediatrician, another a psychologist, another an attorney, and our latest college student graduated in May from UC Berkley in three years rather than four, owing to Advanced Placement credits he earned during his high school years. Our youngest grandchildren, Daphne and Lochlin Michie, will next year be in seventh and fourth grades respectively.

In addition to the excellent academic program, the values stressed at Rowland Hall have enriched our own family dynamics: respect for other students and for diverse backgrounds and personalities, creativity, art appreciation, sportsmanship, community service, modeling of talking through interpersonal problems, concern for others, and personal access to teachers and mentors. When we visit, we know RH is a happy place. Vibrant and original art covers the walls, students are working together in small groups, classrooms are creative and safe places in which to explore, and teachers are fun and approachable.

We are immensely grateful for the whole Rowland Hall experience for our grandchildren – and for what it has meant to their parents as well as to us.

TEACHER

I have the best job in the world! Okay, this might border on exaggeration, but most days I feel like it's true. One reason is because I get to spend time with some of the most interesting people around – teenagers. They are curious, creative, open to new ideas, unpredictable, up for a challenge (most of the time, anyway), and best of all, they make me laugh.

I am lucky to teach a subject – Spanish – that still excites me. It's fun and rewarding to teach something that is so practical that students can literally walk out of the school and begin to use the skills they learned in the classroom. But along with its practical uses, there are also a number of intangibles that come with learning another language. Students learn about themselves and their own society by looking to other cultures. By communicating in a new language students don't just study another culture, but enter and participate in it.

I am happy to be a part of the Rowland Hall community. As a parent and teacher at our school, I see it as a place where both the mind and heart are valued; a place where students are given the opportunity to grow, make connections, try new things, make mistakes, and excel in a variety of areas. It's a place where students, faculty, parents, and administrators work together with the goal of educating young people.

It's not always easy, but it's my interaction with these groups that keeps me coming back for more each year.

Matt Burnett,
Upper School Spanish Teacher

STUDENT

“Grab on, I’ll pull you up.”

One hand clings to the proffered forearm while the other braces itself against the rough sandstone walls beside my knees, held in place only by the force of friction. I haven’t slipped down the side of the canyon because of the bravery of another student, a classmate I haven’t had a real conversation with in years. Nevertheless, here I am trusting him with my safety, and it’s only in retrospect that I find it a little staggering. I manage to pull myself up with his help, and our group continues, negotiating holes we have to swim through and slick boulders thrown here by a volcanic eruption eons ago.

This hike is special, and it’s remarkable that it happened. You see, the eight students on this hike were all seniors, and seniors almost never go on Interim. School’s over, summer’s here, so why go? Just like this hike, why go on an optional day hike that could have been spent lounging around camp? But no, seven friends and I, for by now we were undoubtedly friends, choose to say, “Why not?” Why not go on Interim; the Narrows hike in Zion National Park? So we do, and this one hike showcases what Rowland Hall students can be at their finest: cooperative, brave, resilient, the kind of person you want to hold onto as you dangle over a crevice filled with rock and icy water.

PARENT

My family joined the Rowland Hall family in 2003. Our oldest son, Lawrence, was starting ninth grade and our youngest, Charis, was starting fourth grade. Through sport and various activities I was able to meet other parents and cultivate relationships I cherish today. Our son graduated in 2007 and is now in his senior year at Harvard, yet I continue to keep in touch and socialize with the parents from his Rowland Hall days.

At the beginning of the year, each class has a Parent Social, which is a great way to interact with faculty and other parents of children your children's ages. Rowland Hall's teachers are warm and compassionate, and whenever I visit the school, faculty and staff still ask about Lawrence.

There are so many opportunities to volunteer in the life of the school. For example, Liz Paige directs a service learning program called "Half Day Whole Heart," where the entire high school participates in a half-day of community service throughout Salt Lake City. Parents drive students to various locations to perform services such as working with refugees, singing at the senior citizen's home, and doing yard work and repair for people who are disabled. This is just one example of the countless ways Rowland Hall strives to cultivate the ethics and values in our children that will make them the leaders of tomorrow.

Carol Benjamin

ALUMNUS

When asked to write about how Rowland Hall influenced my life, the first thing that stuck out was the friendships. As I learned from my friends both in undergrad and grad school, it's unique to still have such close ties to high-school friends. In my case, most of my friends are just not high-school friends, but friends I made at Rowland Hall in elementary school. Also, I have the good fortune of having very successful friends in a variety of different professional areas who remain broadly interested in education and learning; I believe this can partially be attributed to Rowland Hall's emphasis on creating well-rounded students. Several of my Rowland Hall friends have even gone on to become teachers. One of the newest teachers on the Salt Lake high school scene is Dave Hausser (class of 2001). Dave is a born teacher, and there is no one my own age from whom I have learned more. One of the things I enjoy most about coming to Salt Lake is meeting up with Dave. Over tea or beer, Dave teaches me about philosophy and history – two subjects I really enjoy but rarely find the time to pursue. I try to talk about some of the new and interesting concepts I have learned in physics and we end up swapping books and more ideas. The talks with Dave are some of the most memorable, transformative, and interesting conversations I've ever had. Similarly, I've learned about non-profits and social entrepreneurship from Preston Nielson, secrets of the culinary world from Ed Heath and Robbie Everest, how to buy a house by the time you are 27 from Mike Elliot, dentistry from David Sandberg, editing, publishing, and startups from Vivek Bidwai, what life is like in Tajikistan from Bo White, everything about Seinfeld from Conor Bentley, criminology from Marc Ruffinogo, and how to “make it rain in real-estate” from Jesse Goldsmith. I feel very lucky for the friends I made at Rowland Hall; I wish them all success in the fascinating careers they are beginning, and I am excited to see what the future holds.

ALUMNI SPOTLIGHT

Beehive Sport and Social Club is a brand new alumni business in Salt Lake dedicated to organizing co-ed, social sports leagues. Beehive Sport and Social Club is the brainchild of two alums, David Marquardt '04 and James Accettura '04. Designed to deliver “intramural fun built for adults,” they founded BeehiveSSC to provide Salt Lake’s young professional community the opportunity to recreate and socialize in a casual setting. Absent along the Wasatch Front until now, social sports clubs have taken hold in nearly all other major US cities. Partnering with local bars and restaurants to provide postgame food and drink discounts, BeehiveSSC began its inaugural kickball season July 7th.

After kickball they will continue the fun with flag football and then dodgeball after the new year. According to the guys, “We plan to add sports as our members’ demand dictates but we’re currently eyeing a wiffleball season in 2012. Every season we have committed to donate $3 of every member’s registration fee to the Boys and Girls Club of Greater Salt Lake - our way of giving back to the community.” For more information on Beehive Sport and Social Club and to register for Fall Flag Football please visit www.BeehiveSports.com.
